

Recently it has come to my attention that the FCC wants to institute a new policy that puts out a "no record" flag on television content. I would like to say that I do not support this idea at all! Instituting this new system would require millions of Americans to buy new televisions and entertainment centers, which many families simply cannot afford. I feel that this regulation of free airwaves is extremely unfair to the American consumer. Television ratings have never been affected by the recording of VCR's, and it's doubtful there ever will be. With so many television shows being released on home video and DVD, there is a decreasing need to even record television programs these days. As a hard working consumer, I'm asking you to not put these actions into affect. Thank you for your time.
